Approximately 2,000 Persons Head Addresses at 10th Annual Visiting Day Program Held Here Friday

Approximately 2,000 farmers and visitors from 40 counties of Arkansas gathered Friday at the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station for the 10th annual visiting day program in which Governor Carl E. Bailey of Arkansas and Ben Kilgore, executive secretary of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, were the principal speakers.

Arkansas Exhibit to World Fair Is to Cost $125,000

J. V. Satterfield Tells Hope Rotarians of Exhibit's Plans

REAL OPPORTUNITY

Chance to Put State's Message Before 10 Million,
1 Cent Each

Arkansas, resolved this time to produce a good exhibit or none at all, will invade the New York World Fair next year with a $125,000 advertisement calculated to persuade part of the bumper crop of tourists which comes through here every year to stay a while and perhaps settle permanently. J. V. Satterfield of Little Rock told Hope Rotary club Friday noon at Hotel Barlow.

Mr. Satterfield, accompanied by A. D. Camp, also of Little Rock, was introduced by R. P. Bowen, secretary of Hope Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Satterfield and Mr. Camp are interested in setting up a three-county district organization here to obtain local funds in the state-wide drive to finance the Arkansas exhibit.

The four aims

The aim of the Arkansas exhibit, Mr. Satterfield said, is fourfold:

1. To obtain still more tourists.
2. To contact permanent-home seekers, particularly those who might settle on farms.
3. To advertise and encourage present industry within the state.
4. To welcome new industries that might contemplate coming here.

An estimated 50 million persons will attend the New York World Fair—one-third of the nation's population—and an estimated 10 million of these will see Arkansas exhibit in the Hall of States, Mr. Satterfield said.

Tentative plans for the state's exhibit call for the making of a professional color travelogue covering every eye-appeal that outdoor Arkansas has—her ducks, her fishing grounds, her mountain scenery, broad fertile plains, and industries.

A Native Son

The film committee will be probably one of her native sons—Bob Burns, Dick Powell, or one of the team of Lunt and Abner. The film will be shown continuously. In addition, the walls of the exhibit space will be covered with photo murals.

Total expense of the exhibit, together with the cost of maintaining a trained personnel, will be $125,000. This means about one cent per person contacted at the New York World Fair—a phenomenally cheap advertising program, Mr. Satterfield said.

He concluded by giving some amazing figures on Arkansas' position in the tourist business.

California received 2½ million tourists last year; Florida 3 million—Arkansas 5 million!

But the tourists visiting California spent while there 300 million dollars; Florida's tourists spent 400 million—but Arkansas' tourists spent only 76 millions.

This indicates, Mr. Satterfield said, that while more pass through this state much fewer stay for any length of time. This is the exploitation picture which confronts Arkansas today—how to persuade tourists to stay longer, spend more money, and perhaps induce some of them to settle here permanently, the speaker concluded.

Rumor of Special Session of Congress Heard

Roosevelt Will Give Answer in Radio Broadcast

Wagner May Seek Renom-

Governorship

TO VISIT OKLAHOMA

President to Stop There on Forthcoming Trip to West

WASHINGTON — (AP)—President Roosevelt's "fireside chat" will give the country a report on whether a special session of congress is to be called.

The president, asked at a press conference whether a special session was probable, told reporters that they would get the answer from his radio speech at 8:30 p. m. (CST) Friday night.

To Visit Oklahoma
The press conference statement by the president gave a broad hint that Senator Wagner, Democrat of New York, would seek to retain his senate seat at this fall's election rather than run for the New York governorship.

Questioned about his forthcoming trip west, the president told reporters that he would stop at Oklahoma City and while there might say a few kind words.

The president did not elaborate on this, but it has been assumed in some political quarters that Senator Thomas, Democrat of Oklahoma, might have the administration's goodwill in his campaign for renomination to the senate.

Permanent PWA
WASHINGTON — (AP)—Secretary Ickes urged Thursday that a permanent Public Works Administration be established to furnish employment at the first sign of business recessions.

Ickes told reporters that PWA had studied many projects and had 3,000 of them ready to go "the moment congress and the president gave us the signal." If PWA were made permanent he said, it could be ready for similar quick action in future depressions.

He said he took "good projects" as they came along. He said he did not intend to concentrate too many projects in any community, but expressed belief that the location of projects did not make much difference. He said they stimulate business generally, regardless of where they are located.

"The effect of this program, or any future program is to give employment," he said, "but there is nothing in the legislation requiring us to take labor directly from relief rolls. Anyone who wants work may apply for employment on a PWA project."

Ickes emphasized that applicants must act quickly to get requests for loans and grants approved within the 90 days remaining before application lists are closed.

Seek to Bar Terry as Demo Candidate

Court Action Begun at Little Rock to Take Name
Off List

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Court action was filed here Thursday in an effort to force democratic state committee officials to strike the name of Congressman D. D. Terry from the lists of candidates for nomination.

Oscar H. Winn, Little Rock attorney and candidate for congress from the fifth district, filed a petition for mandamus in circuit court to compel June P. Wooten, and Beloit Taylor, chairman and secretary of the state committee, to remove Terry's name.

Winn charged it was the duty of the party officials to take such action under party rules because Terry did not support the democratic nominee in a special senatorial election.

Some Time

HENDERSON, Texas.—(AP)—Two witnesses testifying in a damage suit in district court here Thursday said that escaping gas was noticeable at the New London school before the explosion which wrecked it and killed several hundred students and teachers.

C. R. Story, teacher of instrumental music, told the court that escaping gas was noticeable almost every day for a three months period before as well as on the day of the explosion, March 18, 1937.

A senior in the school at the time of the mishap, Miss Rosa Brister, testified that escaping gas was so strong on numerous occasions, before as well as on the day of the explosion, March 18, 1937, that her teachers would open windows, necessitating students putting on wraps.

The testimony was in the case of Walter Harris against the Parade Gasoline company, et al, in which Harris seeks $2950 damages in connection with the death of his son, James, 12, who was killed in the explosion.

Custody of Bank Robber Is Sought

Prosecuting Attorney Ned
Stewart Would Return
Winn to Arkansas

Ned Stewart, prosecuting attorney of the eighth judicial district Thursday night telegraphed Sheriff Smoot Schmidt at Dallas that he desired custody of Jack Winn, 22, arrested there and said to have confessed participating in the Bradley, Ark., bank robbery with Floyd Hamilton and Ted Walters.

Stewart's first knowledge that Winn was in custody and that he had confessed a part in the bank robbery was contained in a news dispatch from Dallas.

He said if Winn failed to return to Arkansas voluntarily, he would ask requisition papers from Governor Carl Bailey to Governor James Allred of Texas.

Suspect Is Grilled

DALLAS, Texas.—(AP)—Sheriff R. A. (Smoot) Schmidt said Thursday night that federal officers had questioned Jack Winn, 22, in connection with the Bradley, Ark., bank robbery of June 6, who remained at large, were named as the other two suspects.

Schmidt said Winn made a statement to local officers admitting participation in the Arkansas robbery in which a trio escaped with $600. Winn drove the automobile, Schmidt said.

The sheriff said Winn may be arraigned here Friday before United States Commissioner John Davis on a warrant seeking his transfer to Little Rock for further questioning.

In Winn's statement to local officers, Schmidt said, Winn said that he, Hamilton and Walters held up the bank robbery, taking their automobile. Filing charges here will be withheld, pending action in the bank robbery case.

Winn was arrested by Dallas and Ellis county officers June 13 and has been in county jail here under the name of John Doe, the sheriff revealed Thursday.

Winn's statement did not mention the Minden, La., bank robbery the day following the Bradley, Ark., holdup, Schmidt said.

Hope Attorney to Seek Legislature

Royce Weisenberger Enters Race for Representative of County

Royce Weisenberger, young Hope attorney, gave The Star his announcement Friday as a candidate for representative to the Arkansas legislature from Hempstead county.

Mr. Weisenberger is a native of the Spring Hill community south of Hope. He attended Hope High School and later entered the University of Arkansas, graduating from the law school.

He taught school several years and then entered the practice of law at Hope. Mr. Weisenberger's statement follows:

"In seeking the Democratic nomination for state representative, I fully know and realize the importance of this office and the necessary qualifications required of one to represent the people of this county.

"I have lived in this county all of my life and feel that I know the needs of this county as well as any man in it. I grew to manhood on a farm in Spring Hill township and I know the farmers' needs. I taught school six years and know the need of a better educational system in this state.

"I am a lawyer and therefore have further acquainted myself with the legislative needs of this state. While a student at the University of Arkansas I specialized in the study of good government and law, and had the honor and privilege of gathering much of the material now contained in one of our leading high school textbooks on Arkansas government.

"I feel that I am well qualified to represent the people of this county and fully competent to perform the duties of this office. I am a young man and come before you asking you to give a young man a chance to rise from the farm to the halls of your legislature.

"When elected to your legislature I pledge myself to an energetic, sane and constructive program of legislation for the benefit of Hempstead County and the whole of Arkansas. There is no candidate in the race who will appreciate your vote and support more than I, nor will keep more sacred the public trust that you place in me."

Negro Confesses to Fatal Fight in Patmos Mystery

Leslie Miles Implicates
Another in Death of S.
Whittaker

TWO HELD IN JAIL

Clue Picked Up by Patmos
Mill Manager Is Given to Officers

The mystery surrounding the discovery of the dead body of Selden Whittaker, negro, on the L. & A. railroad tracks near Patmos June 3 was believed solved Friday with the announcement by the sheriff's office that another negro had confessed, implicating a third negro.

Deputy Sheriff Reginald Bearden said that Leslie Miles confessed he had a fight with Whittaker on the night of June 2 and left Whittaker on the railroad track. Miles' confession stated that Robert Collins, another negro, also engaged in the fight.

Collins entered a complete denial when questioned by officers.

Both Miles and Collins are held in Hope city jail.

Miles was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Bearden and City Policemen Hugh Bearden and Bill Robins through information furnished by Bert Keith, manager of the Frost Lumber Industries, Inc., mill at Patmos. Mr. Keith had picked up a clue from rumors among negro mill hands, and Leslie Miles was promptly arrested, confessing about midnight Thursday.

Miles told the officers he and Collins attended a negro dance at Patmos the night of June 2. Miles said Whittaker stole half a pint of whiskey belonging to them, and they saw Whittaker take the liquor to the railroad track.

Following him, Miles picked up a stick of stove-wood and struck him on the head. According to Miles' confession, Collins ran up behind Whittaker and stabbed him with a knife.

Whittaker fell on the track and the other two negroes fled, leaving him there.

Later, Whittaker was hit by an L. & A. train and his body mangled.

Miles' confession said he didn't know whether Whittaker was dead or not when he and Collins left the scene.

Stocks Ease Off But Hold Steady

Down $1 to $3 Friday, But Up $10 to $15 for the Week

NEW YORK.—(AP)—After giving shares of the nation's leading corporations one of their most striking five-day price advances in years, the buying wave in the New York stock exchange subsided in late trading Friday.

During the morning many leading issues rose $1 to $3, in active dealings, making extreme gains since the start of the week of $10 to more than $15, but by mid-afternoon prices were off $1 or so from the best.

Trading slackened on the setback, and there was no rush to sell, as traders hoped the market was only taking a breathing spell.

A Move to Lock the Door Before the Nag Is Gone

THE Illinois House of Representatives the other day passed a new statute designed to fill in some of the gaps in our legal defense against the so-called sex offender.
 This statute, if it finally becomes law, will make it possible for the authorities to lock up a person of criminal sex propensities before any criminal charge has been filed against him. And while this looks like the most obvious kind of common sense, it nevertheless is a power which the authorities do not have now and which they need very much.
 For, as things stand, the man who suffers from one of those dark and tragic urges which lead to the most frightful of sex crimes cannot be put away until he has actually committed a crime.

TIME and again this sort of story has been told. A man will be arrested for a sex crime of the foulest sort, and the officers will examine his past. They will find that the authorities had their hands on him before the crime, that his tendency toward that kind of offense was perfectly clear, that psychiatrists and plain policemen knew perfectly well that some day he would succumb to his urge and take the life of some helpless woman or child; yet because he had not then actually done anything there was no law by which he could be put permanently under lock and key.

The law, in other words, was bound to a policy of locking the stable door after the horse was stolen; to carry the metaphor a bit farther, it was not allowed to lock the door beforehand even when it knew that a theft was about to take place. It could act only after the offense.

IN ordinary criminal law, of course, it would be monstrously unjust to imprison a man because he might some time in the future commit a crime. But the sex criminal is a creature of a different stripe. He is driven by a tragic tangle in his brain or in his emotional set-up. How infinitely much better for everyone—including himself—to get him out of harm's way before he gives way to this urge and make a monster of himself!

The Illinois law looks like an intelligent step toward the solution of an extremely pressing and complicated problem.

How—Again—to Be Happy

RECIPIES for happiness seem to be a dime a dozen these days. So many have so little to recommend them that a definite editorial obligation exists to call attention to the ones that do seem to have extraordinary merit.

You attention is directed to the advice of Mrs. Christine Morton of the New York State College of Home Economics. Mrs. Morton has found the key to happiness in old age.

Devote more of your time during the so-called active years, says Mrs. Morton, to practicing up for the leisure you're going to have so much of, say, after the age of 70.

Mrs. Morton's idea may not have laid claim to the heart with such violence a few months ago. Something in the air about this time, however—an occasional warm something-or-other suggestive of approaching dog days—forces the mind to the conclusion that a more commendable idea hasn't been proposed in many and many a year.

Now, in these summer months of the year and the summer months of your life, is the time to bone up on your solitaire. Get yourself into condition for hammock-swinging. Keep practicing your whittling. Train for your siestas now. Mrs. Morton has not only hit on a recipe for happiness in old age but to happiness in all the years that precede it.

Spread of Nose Infection May Lead to Death

When the nose becomes infected as a result of some irritation or wound into which germs enter, small abscesses form. The germs most likely to invade are the pus-forming germs of the type of the staphylococcus or the streptococcus, which are usually constant inhabitants of the various portions of the body.

The first sign of an infection is tenderness or soreness, associated with heat, throbbing, and pain. Because of the swelling, the tip of the nose will become glossy and deep scarlet in color.

Since the other tissues respond in an endeavor to wall off the infection from the rest of the body, the cheeks and the upper lip will become thickened, and the swelling may extend to the eyes and the eyelids. If there is continued infection, there may be chills, headache and general illness. If nothing is done, quite frequently the fluid material may break through and be evacuated, so that the signs of infection rapidly disappear. In many cases, however, because of the large blood supply in this area, the infection may spread widely and may even invade the blood, producing death.

Obviously this is not the kind of condition that anyone ought of try to treat for himself, because of the menace that exists through extension of the infection.

A physician will determine first of all the extent of the involvement, and may apply directly to the affected which will help to destroy the germs area suitable antiseptic substances or inhibit their action. Doctors dislike very much to endeavor to treat

Take Child Shopping to Teach Thrift

(No. 125)

Most mothers know what thrift means, even though, through temptation, they don't always practice it. They know that money has its limits, and the best way to spend is to get the most for your money and to buy the things most needed.

Thrift also means to conserve the other way, actually putting by a little sum as regularly as possible for emergencies, for future plans and responsibilities. Thrift also means the mental relief that comes with something in the teapot, be it ever so little. And, it means keeping out of debt.

All this dissertation is not for your benefit, mother. Too few children know what money means. They see daddy disappear every morning to "work," but work comes to be an impersonal thing to them. They see you, mother, with a purse that contains to be exchanged for beef steak, shoes or ice cream cones, not realizing that you, too, work for it.

Since checks and "paper business" have come into vogue, I think many children miss the point of rent, paying for the new ice box or car or the weekly trips to the building lot loan.

Half the expenses of the house are kept a secret from the children either intentionally or unintentionally. So children fail to understand that two or four hands have worked hard to back the check book so importantly riding in father's breast pocket. Thrift, of course, may be taught by the weekly allowance. Thrift is also taught by taking children shopping and showing them values. The child learns that a choice must be made between two purchases, when only one can be had. He must give up the cap if he wants the new shirt, or vice versa. This is as it should be, and he must not say he "can't afford" the one he didn't get, just because he could not have both.

But I believe that real thrift is taught most successfully by showing the child how hard money is to get and having him, or her, do small chores for reward. We never have a lot of respect for money until we put something of ourselves into that money.

Mothers work for the monthly wage the same as fathers. Children must learn this, too, so they won't think that daddy is the magician from whom all blessings flow just because his daily grind is rewarded by a pay envelope.

Toots!"

Then you'll see the girl lamb (close shot): "Some of the fluttering peach blossoms have garlanded her hair, giving her a rather bacchante appearance. She cocks her head as though smiling demurely and coyly at her suitor. . . . He gets the idea and lets out a hearty Ba-a-a-a-a. . . . She throws back her head and opens her mouth high and wide and out comes the shrill neigh of a horse."

There is no use delving into the writers' reasons for wanting such precociously amorous and strangely vocal lambs. This is just to give you an idea of what the special effects departments are up against. The experts may work a week to get a minute film. But they'll get it.

STORIES IN STAMPS

How Well Was George Washington Educated?

EXTENSIVE estates and a large income provided handsomely for the youth George Washington, except in the field of education. So meager were the facilities of the Colonies during these early 1700's that even children of the richest were forced to depend on the poor common schools, which offered only the rudimentary branches.

So it was that such education as Washington had was completed before he was 16. As a growing lad, he was not remarkable as a scholar; was reserved, sedate. At the age of 13 he wrote out for his own use 110 maxims of civility and good behavior.

His chief inclination seemed toward mathematics. Hence his last two years of formal study were devoted to engineering, geometry, trigonometry and surveying. It was probably because surveying promised advantages, in view of the wild state of the country and the increasing demand for accurate surveys, that Washington entered it professionally.

It was to lead him, indirectly, toward the Presidency, for his success early established a solid reputation for him among the leading men of Virginia.

Yesterday, Joe wakes up after his wreck, and himself facing a red-headed girl who tells him she is on her way to Boston to be married.

CHAPTER II

DESPITE the riveting operations that were going on in his head, Mr. Joseph Sandham bounced to a sitting position. For some minutes now a great truth had been slowly dawning upon him. With Kelly's words it crystallized in his brain. This red-headed girl with the trick eyes was a cold knockout. He was a chump not to have perceived it right at the start. She had everything it takes and enough left over for a rainy day. And he, Joseph Sandham, was nuts about her. Completely nuts. Knocked for a loop in the first few minutes of play. Yes, realized Mr. Sandham, he was all wrapped up, tied with red ribbon and labeled "Property of Miss Kelly Archer." And unless he could steer her into a church ere many moons were passed, life was going to be a total flop. And here she sat calmly informing him that she intended to marry some wen named Gilbert.

"Hey!" he shouted. "Say that again."

Kelly said it. Joe shook his head.

"Wrong," he said. "All wrong."

"What do you mean, wrong?"

"Wrong, that's all. You can't marry this Gilbert for the simple reason that you're going to marry me. I won't have my wife going around committing bigamy."

Kelly looked at him as if he were an escaped lunatic.

"Marry you?" she repeated incredulously.

"You've got it," said Joe. "I perceive," said Kelly, "that you're an imbecile."

"Imbecile? Hal! Hard names won't get you anywhere. What you've got to do, young lady, is disengage yourself from this tramp Gilbert."

"He's no tramp. He's a darling."

"That's what you think now. But wait! You bask in my society while Gilbert will appear laughable to you."

"I don't intend to bask in your society. For any longer than it takes you to drive me to Boston."

Joe jumped. "Boston?"

"Quite so. If it hadn't been for you and that crackpot car of yours I'd have been in Boston by now. And married to Gilbert."

"Married to Gilbert?" roared Joe. "Do you mean to say you want to go away to marry the tomato? Lord, this is terrible."

KELLY waved her hand. "Listen," she said. "See if you can get this straight. Last evening I had a horrible fight with my family. They said things to me and about—well, about Gilbert that I can never forgive or forget. So I simply up and walked out. I wired Gilbert that I was ready to elope with him now. He—he's been deviling me to for a year. And I got into my car and started for Cambridge just as fast as I could go. And everything would have gone according to Hoyle if you hadn't been woolgathering on the wrong side of the road. Well, you make me break my car. And if you've got even a symptom of decency, you'll drive me to Boston just as soon as you feel better. Because—I haven't enough money to take the train. And there's no other car except yours. And Gilbert expected me this morning."

"I don't blame your folks for saying things," said Joe. "What does this idle Gilbert do?"

"That's all you know about it. Gilbert is studying to be an archeologist." Joe snapped his fingers. "I'd have bet money on it. Just an inquisitive guy going around excavating things that don't belong to him."

"What utter bilge. I suppose your profession, whatever it is, is on a far higher and nobler plane than archeology."

"You're darn tootin'," barked Joe. "It's a nice clean business with a future in it. No rats, no rot, no rust. We do things and go places, us guys."

"Well, what is your business? If I may be no presumptuous as to inquire?"

"I'm a candy salesman," said Joe.

Kelly wrinkled the charming end of a charmingly tip-titled nose. "Candy salesman? Good grief. It sounds too horrible."

"What is horrible about candy? Think of the joy it brings to little children and old ladies and church socials and . . ."

"Oh, for Heaven's sake, you think of it. I'm only interested in knowing whether or not you are going to be gentlemanly enough to drive me to Boston?"

"By gosh," he roared. "I will drive you. And I'll pound sense into that red head of yours every mile of the way. I ought to be over in Meriden or somewhere selling a guy a case o' Chandler & Sandham's Triple-Flavored Black Walnut Crunchies, but that can wait. Everything can wait till I avert this disaster to flowering womanhood. Where are my clothes?"

"Neatly folded on the chair by your bed, Excellency."

"Who folded them?"

"I did, Mr. Spanish Inquisition Sandham. Who did you think?"

Joe heaved himself up, keeping under the protection of the bed-covers.

"Attababy," he said. "You'll make a wonderful wife. Beat it now, while I dress."

TWENTY minutes later Mr. Joseph Sandham stood in the driveway belonging to Mr. Tyler Archer and surveyed his car. He was pleased to note that it had come through the collision practically unscratched. The radiator was dented a little and the front left fender looked like a discov-aged doughnut. Otherwise it seemed sound in wind and limb. Joe got in and drove it a few feet down the driveway. It steered well and the tires were okay. Satisfied he descended from the driver's seat and stood looking pensively at the starboard side of the car which bore, in gilt and black, the legend:

CHOCOLATES

CHANDLER & SANDHAM

Caramels

Without going around to port Joseph knew that the inscription there read:

Bonbons

CHANDLER & SANDHAM

Confections

From the house came the appetizing aroma of bacon, crisping in a fryingpan. Joseph lifted his head and sniffed, like a hound. And at this point Kelly popped her head out of a kitchen window.

"First and last call for breakfast," she said.

Mr. Sandham leaped like a speared grampus and the leap carried him all the way into the kitchen. Kelly was infesting this place, charming in a sea-green apron.

"In there," she said, exhibiting a breakfast-nook which held forth beyond the open door of the pantry. "Go make a feast of yourself."

"Gee," said Mr. Sandham, "you can cook? Fancy that!"

"Of course, I can cook," said Kelly scornfully. "What do you think I am, an archeologist?"

No suitable comeback occurring to him, Mr. Sandham went into the breakfast nook and overpowered a double range juice. Just as it said "Uncle," Kelly appeared, bearing a breaded wheat. He crumpled this buried it under sugar, drowned it in cream and took it in his stride. Followed by a beautiful pale-yellow consistency. Mr. Sandham went to work, swooshing this concoction down with coffee which would have drawn commendation from a pernickety Arab. Kelly stood over him, refilling the cup.

"This guy Gilbert," said Joe, with his mouth full of bacon and eggs, "would have lived high if I hadn't come along."

The Silver Trail

Last night
Down a white walk misted with moonlight,
I saw a silver trail
Left by a snail.
So I, going my quiet way,
Would leave behind
A trail of silver
For those who follow after me to find.
Here I shall plant a tree in a barren place,
And sometime, against the stars, an elm will shake
Its silver lace.
I shall slip this gnarled brown root into the sod,
And some day, out of a rose's heart,
will shine
The face of God.
I shall not trample the spider's web
That sparkles the grass;
I shall try never to hurt a living thing
As I pass;
And oh, I must remember to be kind
Today,
Going my silver way.—Selected.

Tiniest Man, Life-Sized

Sharing Service With Christ
Text: Mark 16:1-8, 14-16, 19, 20

From the tragedy of Calvary we turn to the triumph of the open tomb. From the despair and gloom of the disappointed and discouraged disciples, we turn to the revival of faith and hope, and the consciousness that the Master who had gone to the cross was living and not dead.

The glory of His resurrection, like the glory of His birth and the glory of that sad hour when His mother stood by the cross, is shared by women. What a remarkable place they occupy in all the beautiful story of the Master's life and death and resurrection—and all this coming out of a time when women had essentially an inferior social place and where, in general, they had little recognition. It is through the faith and courage of the women who went to the tomb and found it open that the disciples are rallied and brought into new faith and service.

And now that Jesus reveals Himself anew to those who had left all and followed Him, He gives them a deep and great commission. He no longer tells them to go into the villages of Galilee and Judea, but He gives them a great and world-wide commission.

There is a vision and purpose that even the discovery of new continents only expands. He said to the disciples, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation."

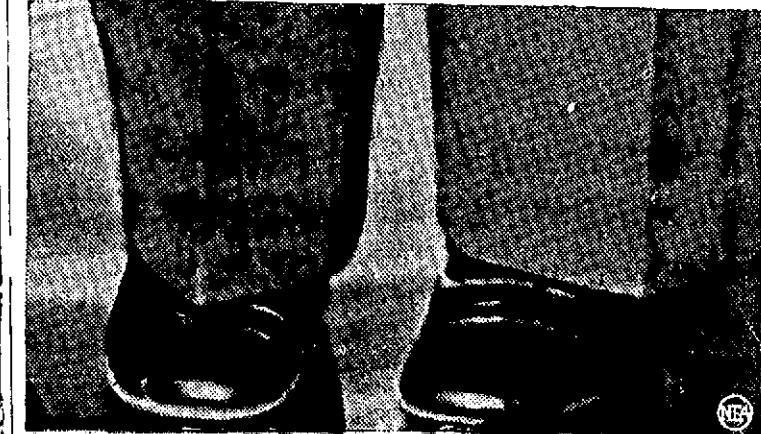

There have been great imperialisms in the world, imperialisms of might and power, the imperialism of Greece, the imperialism of Rome, the imperialism of later empires; but here is the great imperialism of love, service, and salvation, an imperialism that contemplates the reaching out to the whole world and all creation with the good news concerning God, and with the salvation that is able to transform cursing into blessing through lifting men from sin into righteousness.

Here on this large and triumphant note we leave the quarter's studies in the life and messages of Jesus, as found in the Book of Mark. It is the climax of all our study and the climax of all our thought and effort. In a sense, also, it is no climax, for when we attain a peak in sight, we see beyond larger peaks to conquer.

From these studies in the life of Christ, we turn back to the history of the early years of Israel. It was the heroic and prophetic life of Israel and its great leaders that prepared the world for the coming of the Messiah. In the study of the Old Testament we find the source and foundation of all that is best in the New.

The Old Testament scriptures were the scriptures that Jesus knew, and in which he was trained in that devout home in Nazareth in which he grew up, increasing in wisdom, and in favor with God and man.

Men drivers of autos outnumber women four to one but 60 per cent of the young people taking "driver training" study are women.

These are Paul "Peter the Great" Del Rio's feet (actual size). It's 19 inches to the top of his head (see cut above).

The President's flag consists of the President's seal in bronze upon a blue background with a large white star in each corner.

Peach Movement to Markets Is Aided

State Farm Bureau Co-operates in Movement of Arkansas Crop

The Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation, advised of the large peach crop now being harvested or about to be harvested in this state, is co-operating in every possible way in the united effort being made at this time to move this crop into state and interstate markets, according to H. H. Huskey, president of the Hempstead County Farm Bureau, who has received information of the organization's activities in this connection.

Mr. Huskey states that the June issue of the Farm Bureau Press, published by the state organization, carried considerable information on this year's Arkansas peach crop, and urged County Farm Bureau units all over the state to discuss this question and to lend assistance to the growers in removing the surpluses, as well as procuring a supply of quality peaches for local use.

This matter is now before the Hempstead County Farm Bureau, which will co-operate with our County Extension Agents in any move to aid in this project," Mr. Huskey said. "We have been advised by Waldo Frasier, executive secretary of the Arkansas

Farm Bureau Federation, that he has contacted William McComb, in charge of the Arkansas Automobile Association, and that Mr. McComb is giving publicity to the pilgrimages through the various peach-growing sections over the Little Rock radio stations, and that he is contacting the national officers of their organization in order to get a national broadcast."

In addition, Mr. Frasier reports that he has been in correspondence with the proper departments of the National Association of Food Chains, and that this organization, following a meeting with interested Arkansas parties in St. Louis, has agreed to conduct a special advertising and selling campaign among its thousands of retail members in nearby states, where the bulk of the Arkansas peach crop must be sold.

The pilgrimages referred to by Mr. Frasier, arranged in co-operation with the Agricultural Extension Service and local agencies, include a tour through the Nashville area July 3 and 4, and through the Crowley's Ridge area and to the Forrest City Peach Festival July 14. A tour was conducted through the Clarksville area Sunday, June 26, but continued efforts are being made to get additional groups to visit this section until the crop is entirely harvested.

"County Farm Bureaus in all these areas are co-operating locally with grower and marketing organizations, as well as other agencies, in this worthwhile effort to move the 2,225,000-bushel Arkansas peach crop this year," Mr. Huskey said. "Later, when it residents of Hobbs and vicinity. The injured: Fred Luthy, Albuquerque, N. M., vice president of the Albuquerque bank; Herman Crile, Roswell (N. W.) lawyer; Jack Starkey, Hobbs, superintendent of the Two-State Drilling Company; Ole Johnson, riggerman. All the injured were in a serious condition at the Hobbs hospital. Kaseman was financially interested in the well and had come here with Luthy, Headley and Crile to inspect it.

The blast occurred six miles southwest of Monument, N. M., in the Monument oil field. The well was the Two-State No. 2, being drilled by the Two-State Drilling Company.

As authorities reconstructed the accident, the blasting crew had just removed the nitro "bomb" from the truck on which it had been transported to the scene. As they carried the charge toward the drilling rig it exploded.

Vander Meer Gives Bob Grove Credit

Control Is Attributed to Advise From Grove and McKechnie

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service
NEW YORK—Johnny Vander Meer credits Bill McKechnie and Bob Grove, the man his manager sent him to, for the improved control that enabled him to turn in consecutive no-hit, no-run games for the first time in 100 years of baseball and to win seven engagements in a row.

At Tampa this spring, McKechnie told Vander Meer that he was letting go of the ball too early, and that this accounted for the fact that he was missing the plate by an inch or two. The Cincinnati pilot advised his great young southpaw to work on going through more with the pitch, holding on to the ball longer, and told him to relax a bit.

"Sometimes I'd do what he told me to do, and then again I'd forget it," says Vander Meer. "That accounted for my streakiness in the line of getting the ball over the plate."

While the Reds were coming north with the Boston Red Sox, McKechnie told Vander Meer to go to the clubhouse and talk with Lefty Grove. Old Lefty told the Hollander that he'd noticed that he finished his pitch with his right leg stiff.

"Bend that right knee just a bit and it will help you in your pitch," Grove told the pleasant youngster who was to write pitching history. "It will give you the right follow through."

McKechnie Praises Low Curve Ball

Vander Meer started to do this immediately, and believes that it helped him immediately.

McKechnie says that the big muscle which Vander Meer has on the inside of his left arm—just above the elbow—is the strongest he ever saw on a pitcher.

"It may account for his speed and that fine curve," beams Wilkesburg Will. "I just wouldn't know."

It isn't necessary for McKechnie to say that Vander Meer has more stuff right now than any other pitcher in the National League. But that's his answer to the question of how in the world the young man happened to hurl two no-hitters in a row.

"I cannot tell you how Johnny happened to be so good in those two games," says McKechnie. "It's beyond me, and probably nobody ever will know the answer. But I can say that he's a fine pitcher and has the stuff. For instance, that low curve ball of his, particularly in the late part of the game with the Bees, was practically unbeatable."

Giles Wards Off "Proposition"

Men
Warren Giles, general manager of the Reds, has constituted himself as a buffer between Vander Meer and these alert business men who would not let their products and schemes by using the new big baseball name there-with.

"Johnny is taking his time," explains Giles. "He says that he is primarily a baseball player and does not want a lot of tinsel and ballyhoo."

Vander Meer is a nice kid with a keen sense of humor.

He gets a laugh telling about having a no-hit game practically in his pocket in the Piedmont League.

"There were two out and two strikes on the batter when George Ferrell, brother of Wes and Rick, wheeled a base hit which knocked the stuck pitching template right off Johnny Vander Meer's shoe."

The principal export of Honduras is bananas.

Henderson Coach to Be Named Soon

Financial Barrier Likely to Keep Rowland From Taking Position

ARKADELPHIA, Ark.—The coaching situation at Henderson State Teachers College is marking time until the meeting of the board of trustees next Tuesday. College authorities say there have been a number of applications by well known football tutors of this and other states but that no decision has been reached.

It seems to be the consensus of opinion that J. H. (Bo) Rowland, line coach at Cornell University, New York is just the man for the job, but there is some doubt that the college can pay the salary that would entice him away from his job at East.

Coach Rowland Thursday said he liked the folks and was satisfied with his present salary at Cornell, although he thought it was mighty nice of the Henderson people to want him to come back. Rowland coached what many believe was the most powerful team of all time at Henderson back in 1928 and 1929. He had a strong team at Ouachita where he coached a year before going to Oklahoma University. He has proved his prowess at Syracuse and at Cornell. He has had full charge of Brad Holland, the Cornell negro, who made all-America end the past season. His line at Cornell has been a major factor in the success of that team. Rowland's basketball team was the best at Cornell in 10 years. Therefore, it will take considerable of a salary to lure him away from wealthy school in New York. Both Mr. and Mrs. Rowland have relatives at Moberly and Arkadelphia whom they would like to be near.

If we are to save democracy in this country we must find a way to iron out the violent fluctuations in our business cycle—W. Elliot Janeway, economist, writer.

Face returns to the exhaling position and the left arm begins the pull at the count of three.

Exhalation is continued for the count of four, five, and six, while the left arm is being pulled down and back.

The left arm should have finished its pull at the count of six, and as the left arm begins recovery again the head is turned for a breath at the count of one, as in previous lesson.

The pupil should now be ready to put the complete stroke together.

NEXT AND CONCLUDING: The complete stroke.

Wrestling Show to Open Friday

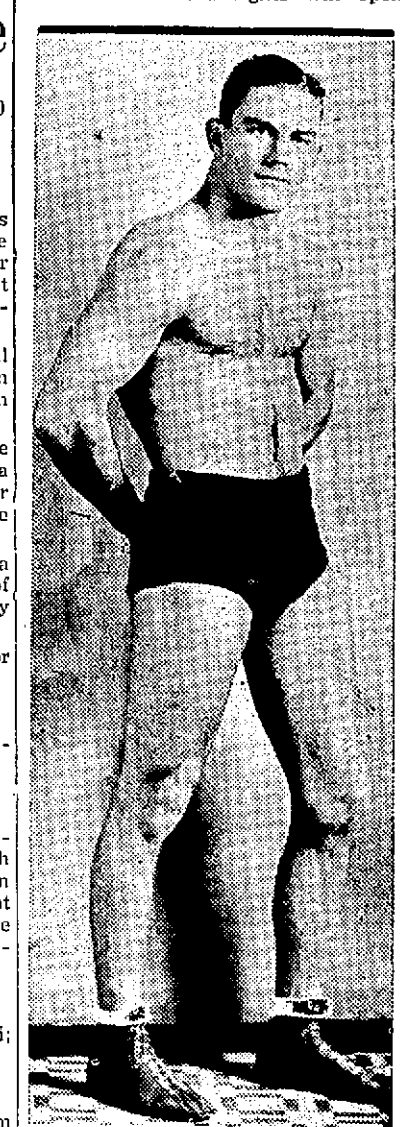

Doors Open at 8 o'Clock, First Bout Begins at 8:30 p. m.

Leslie Wolfe, former contender for the championship and at present one of the outstanding wrestling promoters in the south, has been one of the best and most widely known wrestlers in the light heavyweight ranks.

Taking up wrestling fourteen years ago, at the age of 15, in Sherman, Texas, his home town, Wolfe has wrestled throughout the United States and Canada and Mexico. In 1932-33 he appeared in a number of matches in the Wamian and Philippine islands. Six months ago in California while making preparations to sail for South America, Wolfe bought out the promoting rights to the stadium in Little Rock and returned at once to that city. Since that time he has been active in giving instructions to school and club groups over the state. After 14 years wrestling, Leslie refuses to give up the mat game entirely and accepts a few matches occasionally to keep in condition.

Friday night's second main event at the Byers arena on South Main street will feature Leslie Wolfe and Ray Clemens of Amarillo, Texas. The first half of the win bill will bring together Gil La Cross, the Canadian grip artist and Jimmie Lott, barrelchested husky of Birmingham, Ala. Both matches have a two hour time limit with two out of three falls deciding the winner.

Use Exercise as Pickup for Dragged-Down State

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Service Staff Writer

Only ardent sportswomen who ride and swim frequently or play golf or tennis fairly often should stop setting-up exercises during the summer months. Regardless of those whose work requires almost no physical effort — will feel better and hence be more attractive-looking if they do a few simple routines energetically and regularly.

The idea that one who rises early and is busy at the office all day doesn't really need anything except rest when the day's work is done is a great fallacy. If you doubt this, go rapidly through a series of exercise routines for ten minutes tonight when you get home from the office. Then take a warm bath, and see how much less tired you feel. Notice, too, that the dull pain in the back of your neck disappears.

Your doctor will agree that, more often than not, physical exercise is the best cure for nervous fatigue. If you seem always to be tense and utterly weary at five o'clock, he no doubt will agree, too, that it would be a good idea for you to walk at least part of the way home from the office every night. Also, always to do setting-up exercises at the end rather than the beginning of the day.

Too many women who do not go to business are inclined to believe that the daily chores about the house provide adequate exercise. In many cases this isn't true.

Naturally, one who does every bit of her own housework and cares for small children no doubt needs a short nap rather than setting-up exercises late in the afternoon. However, the woman who lives in a small house or who has no children ought to plan to take a long brisk walk every day and manage to do a few exercises to keep her figure slim and trim.

Modern exercise salons recommend limbering and stretching routines for every customer, whether she is overweight or not. Here are several that you can do at home:

Stand erect with feet together, arms at sides. Raise heels nirehooiew...kri.

Stand erect with feet together, arms at sides. Raise heels from the floor and stretch arms upward as far as possible, feeling waistline muscles pull. Now relax completely, letting upper half of your body swing forward. Head should hang loosely downward and arms should be quite limp. Come back to the first position. Repeat five times.

Stand with feet about eight inches apart, hands high above head with palms facing. Lower right hand to side and bend to the right as far as possible. Reverse, holding right hand high, lowering left one and bending to the left.

Place hands on hips and put all of

Special Submarine For Arctic Waters Described by Wilkins

Floods Help China Capture 2 Cities Held by Japanese

Mechanized Jap Armies Unable to Advance in Mud and Water

JAP THRUSTS HALTED

The Rising Yellow and Yangtze Rivers Provide Impassable Barrier

HONG KONG, British Crown Colony.—(A)—Japanese troops landed on the South China mainland Friday under a heavy protective barrage while Japanese planes extensively bombed Swatow, South China treaty port.

The Chinese, after retreating inland, counter-attacked and held their ground against the Japanese near Chihlin.

Floods Help China

SHANGHAI, China.—(A)—Chinese armies wading knee-deep through Yellow river flood waters were reported Friday to have recaptured two cities from which major Japanese forces had been compelled to retreat.

Three hundred miles to the south, floods in the Yangtze river basin, heightened by an unfavorable weather combined with the Japanese joint land and naval drive up the river for Hankow, Chinese provisional capital.

Thus floods, age-long despair of the Chinese people, because their chief ally in defense against Tokyo's two main thrusts.

The comparatively light Chinese units, operating effectively through mud and water, used the devastating Yellow river flood to great advantage, whereas the highly mechanized Japanese armies in inundated Homan province could not advance over fields and highways covered with a thick layer of mud.

The Chinese reported they had recaptured large areas east and south of Chengchow, junction of the strategic east-west tianhai railway, running north and south, scene of intense Japanese activity for many weeks.

The defenders said they recaptured Chupenow, on the Lungshai 25 miles east of Chengchow, and Hushih, 30 miles south of Chupenow.

Foreign observers gave considerable credence to the Chinese claims, holding movement of the mechanized Japanese machine over mud-covered Homan province virtually was impossible.

At Hankow a government spokesman said the Chinese were confident rapidly rising Yangtze waters before long would provide an impassable barrier for the Japanese.

Heavy fighting was reported near Tikang, on the south bank of the Yangtze 500 miles east of Hankow. On the north bank the Japanese advance was halted at Taohu, 170 miles from Hankow.

She Stood Alone

BERKELEY, Calif.—(A)—Gertrude Faulkner Kaufman was certainly in the spotlight as the Pacific Unitarian School for the Ministry held its annual graduation exercises. She was the only graduate.

Sir Hubert says he has perfected an instrument which would drill a hole through the ice from the submarine so scientists could get to the surface to take observations.

Security Numbers Show an Increase

Cumulative Total for Arkansas Is 264,423, Cooter Reports

TEXARKANA, Ark.—The cumulative total of Social Security account numbers, issued in Arkansas as of June 1, is 264,423. John H. Cooter, manager of the Social Security Board field office at Texarkana announced Friday.

The total for the United States on the same date was 39,106,321.

A large number of graduates of colleges and high schools have obtained numbers in the past month, Cooter said. He stressed the importance of having Social Security account cards, even though work may be temporary, give preference in hiring to workers.

Many employers, it was pointed out, who already have their cards.

Ferons living in cities having Social Security Board offices should make their applications and obtain their cards at the field office. Those living elsewhere should obtain application blanks at the post office and after filling them out carefully, mail them to the manager of the Social Security Board field office in their area.

Counties in Cooter's service area for the issuance of account numbers are: Polk, Montgomery, Sevier, Howard, Pike, Clark, Ouachita, Nevada, Hempstead, Little River, Miller, Lafayette, Columbia and Union. His address is 406 Federal Building, Texarkana, Ark.

such reports is to have a floating headquarters, and that headquarters must be under the ice because the ice masses are in constant drift," he says.

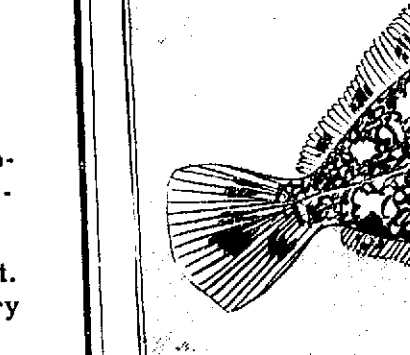

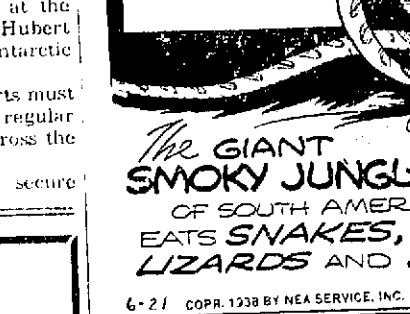

"A submarine could remain at the north pole for three years. Food and equipment would be supplied by airplanes, which landed on the ice before winter began.

"Life in such a submarine would be quite comfortable, as the temperature of the Arctic ocean is only 32 degrees Fahrenheit, although the air is intensely cold."

Il Duce Revamps Addis Ababa Despite Opposition

ADDIS ABABA.—(A)—While her colonial armies are busy trying to put down bawky Ethiopian tribesmen who refuse to accept Italian domination of this ancient African Kingdom, Italy's Empire builders are reconstructing Haile Selassie's old capital.

Military and administrative buildings, restaurants, bars, cinemas, and shops have sprung up among the native mud-huts and Greek and Armenian shops. Pavements have been built and roads resurfaced.

Many of the main centers of activity are being transferred to fresh quarters. The ancient "great market" has been moved to the district where the American legation formerly stood. In its place modern roads lined by shops have been constructed.

The industrial and commercial center is to be moved to the Fila district, near the railway station. This quarter, formerly swampy, has now been drained, and is dominated by military buildings of modern architecture surrounded by gardens.

Upon Mussolini's orders, Ethiopian natives who show any opposition to the Fascist regime in the Duce's new empire, are promptly shot. Whole towns and villages in the interior are reported to have been wiped out by the Italian army and air force for resisting Mussolini's Roman legions. Foreigners here believe it will take at
